Steve Grossman, a field consultant for the Nestlé Purina Company, is a professional gun dog trainer specializing in ruffed grouse and woodcock dogs. This seminar is conducted for those wanting to become a better dog handler and to work on problems that you may have with your dog. The morning session will begin with obedience training with your own dog. Steve will work on obedience problems, specific commands, and individual needs. Topics covered will include teaching 'Whoa', 'come', 'heel', 'quit', check cord work and handling. E-collar introduction and proper use will be covered during both morning and afternoon sessions. The collar is a great tool when used properly. Afternoon sessions are in the field. Field training consists of bird work to develop point or staunchness as well as range control, stopping the chase, retrieve and other handling issues.

Sunday, August 23rd

Steve will be holding private half-hour training sessions with individuals looking to work on specific training problems with their dog.

A half-hour session costs $30.

Sessions run from 8:30 to 12:00 p.m.
